In the heart-wrenching pages of "Reporter Love For The Abandoned People Of Vietnam," award-winning journalist Nguyen Qui Duc recounts the harrowing stories of those left behind in the aftermath of war and displacement.

Duc, a Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative reporter, spent years traveling the length of Vietnam, seeking out the stories of the most vulnerable and marginalized people. He found them in remote villages, in crowded slums, and on the streets of cities. They were the victims of war, of poverty, and of discrimination.

Duc's writing is both deeply personal and deeply informative. He shares the stories of the people he met, but he also provides historical and political context, helping readers to understand the complex forces that have led to their abandonment.

One of the most striking things about Duc's book is his empathy for the people he writes about. He does not judge them or pity them, but instead treats them with respect and dignity. He believes that everyone has a story to tell, and that every story deserves to be heard.

"Reporter Love For The Abandoned People Of Vietnam" is a powerful and moving book that shines a light on a hidden world of suffering and injustice. It is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the human cost of war and displacement.
