The House in France is a memoir about a woman's journey to find love, loss, and home in the French countryside. This captivating and poignant story will stay with you long after you finish reading it.

The author, Janine Marsh, is a successful career woman who has always dreamed of living in France. When her husband dies unexpectedly, she decides to sell her home in England and move to the Dordogne region of France.

At first, Janine is overwhelmed by the challenges of living in a foreign country. She doesn't speak the language, she doesn't know anyone, and she doesn't know how to do many of the things that are necessary to run a household. But over time, she begins to find her way.

With the help of some kind and generous neighbors, Janine learns to speak French, she makes new friends, and she begins to feel at home in her new surroundings. She also finds love again with a charming Frenchman named Jean-Luc.

The House in France is a beautifully written and moving story about love, loss, and finding home. Janine Marsh's journey is one that will resonate with anyone who has ever dreamed of living in a foreign country.
