In a cozy little barn filled with the sweet scent of hay, there lived an adorable piglet named Betty. Betty was a playful and curious piglet, but there was one thing she didn't like: birthdays.

Betty's friends loved birthdays. They would squeal with delight at the thought of presents, games, and a big birthday cake. But Betty just couldn't understand what was so special about getting older.

Betty's Birthday Surprise

One sunny morning, Betty woke up to find her barn decorated with colorful streamers and balloons. Her friends had secretly planned a surprise birthday party for her.

At first, Betty was confused. Why were they making such a fuss? But as she looked around and saw the smiling faces of her friends, a tiny spark of excitement began to grow within her.

Games and Laughter

Betty's friends had organized a series of fun games. They played "Pin the Tail on the Pig," "Musical Hoops," and "Pass the Parcel." Betty giggled and squealed as she chased after her friends, trying to catch the tail or grab the parcel.

With each game, Betty started to realize that birthdays were not as bad as she thought. She was having so much fun with her friends, and she couldn't help but smile.

A Special Cake and a Song

As the games came to an end, Betty's friends gathered around her and sang "Happy Birthday." Betty felt a warm glow in her heart as she listened to their sweet voices.

Then, her friends presented her with a beautiful birthday cake adorned with pink frosting and sprinkles. Betty's eyes widened with surprise and delight.

Betty's Discovery

As Betty took her first bite of the delicious cake, she realized something important. Birthdays were not just about getting older. They were about celebrating the special moments in life, the times spent with loved ones, and the joy of being alive.

From that day on, Betty looked forward to her birthday every year. She knew that it was a day to treasure, a day to be surrounded by laughter, love, and the sweet taste of a birthday cake.
