A Victorian Haven for the Spirit World

Nestled amidst the rolling hills of Maine, Camp Etna emerged as a spiritualist sanctuary in the Victorian era. Attracted by its idyllic setting and conducive atmosphere, mediums and spiritualists flocked to this secluded retreat, seeking communion with the spirit world.

Eminent figures in the spiritualist movement, such as Cora L. V. Richmond and Leonora Piper, held regular séances at Camp Etna. Participants from all walks of life gathered in dimly lit rooms, eager to connect with loved ones beyond the veil.

Remarkable Mediums and Their Extraordinary Abilities

ZOOM

Mediums at Camp Etna possessed extraordinary abilities to communicate with spirits and facilitate otherworldly connections.

Camp Etna became renowned for its exceptional mediums who demonstrated astonishing psychic abilities. They served as bridges between the physical and spiritual realms, delivering messages, healing emotional wounds, and providing solace to the bereaved.

Among the most celebrated mediums was Dr. Henry Slade, known for his remarkable ability to levitate objects and communicate with spirits in real-time. His séances attracted national attention and sparked intense debates about the existence of the paranormal.

Legends that Haunt the Halls of Camp Etna

Over the years, Camp Etna has accrued a rich tapestry of legends and ghost stories that continue to captivate visitors and paranormal enthusiasts alike.

Whispers of a spectral child who wanders the halls, the haunting cries of a murdered woman, and the restless spirits of former mediums have become an integral part of Camp Etna's enigmatic allure.
