Ernie Banks: Mr. Cub

Ernie Banks is arguably the most iconic player in Cubs history. Known affectionately as "Mr. Cub," Banks was a shortstop and first baseman who played for the Cubs for 19 seasons. He was a 14-time All-Star and two-time National League MVP, and he led the Cubs to the National League pennant in 1969. Banks was known for his infectious smile, his positive attitude, and his incredible talent on the field. He is widely considered to be one of the greatest players of all time, and his number 14 has been retired by the Cubs.

Andy Pafko: The "Greek God"

Andy Pafko was a center fielder for the Cubs from 1943 to 1951. He was a three-time All-Star and a one-time National League batting champion. Pafko was known for his graceful fielding, his powerful bat, and his handsome looks. He was also a fan favorite, and his number 8 has been retired by the Cubs.

Ferguson Jenkins: The "Fergie Express"

Ferguson Jenkins was a pitcher for the Cubs from 1966 to 1973 and again from 1982 to 1984. He was a six-time All-Star and a three-time National League ERA champion. Jenkins was known for his blazing fastball, his sharp curveball, and his pinpoint control. He was one of the most dominant pitchers in the game during his era, and his number 31 has been retired by the Cubs.

Other Cubs Legends

In addition to Banks, Pafko, and Jenkins, the book "Where Have You Gone, Ernie Banks?" also profiles other legendary Cubs players, including:

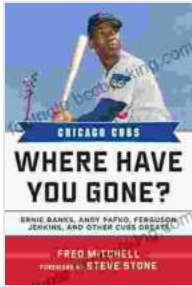

* Billy Williams * Ron Santo * Ryne Sandberg * Greg Maddux * Sammy Sosa

These players have all made significant contributions to the Cubs' success over the years, and they have all left a lasting legacy in the hearts of Cubs fans.

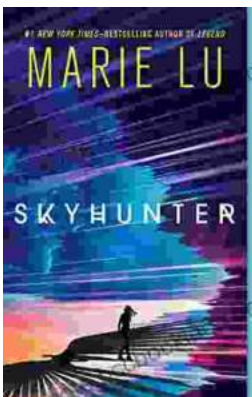

The book "Where Have You Gone, Ernie Banks?" is a must-read for any Cubs fan. It is a fascinating and nostalgic look back at the lives and careers of some of the greatest players in Cubs history. These players were more than just athletes; they were icons who helped to shape the identity of the Chicago Cubs. Their legacy will continue to inspire generations of Cubs fans for years to come.
